Concern: Cancer

Health concern

Jenn, a 51-year-old wife and mother, was diagnosed with breast cancer. Confused and worried about conflicting test results, she reached out to Summus for support and guidance to understand her condition, make decisions about her care, and help her navigate the diagnosis and treatment.

Member impact

Summus connected Jenn with Dr. Mark Pegram, the Director of Breast Cancer and Medical Oncology, from Stanford University who met with her virtually several times throughout her treatment to discuss and explain test results and suggested treatment options to discuss with her treating oncologist.

Summus was like finding a life raft in the ocean, one I clung to throughout my diagnosis and subsequent treatment.
